SILVER ASSERTING ITSELF.

The silver bull is asserting itself as a market moving power although a moon has scarcely tilted her horn since the Executive signature which made it a law was attached to its surface. The metal has been slowly but steadily advancing since that time, contrary to the predictions and hopes of the gold bug element, and instead of the United States being made the dumping ground of the surplus silver of the world a larger stream than ever is being drawn from us. Within the last ten days over 1,250,000 ounces have been shipped to England and it is expected that as much more will be sent away in less than another week. It is evident that our favorable legislation has not only strengthened the value of the metal but has made long strides towards establishing it at its true value as a circulating medium. If a compromise measure, even before it goes into actual effect, can restore confidence and establish the market in a great financial center like London, which is receiving all of our silver exports, what would be the result of legislation of an absolutely friendly and determined nature? The query suggests its own answer. The S. F. Post in this connection says:

The friends of silver have every reason to be pleased with the outlook. Although only given a partial show, the metal whose cause they are advocating is establishing itself; it is forcing its own way to the front as a circulating medium whose value has been temporarily impaired, but not destroyed, by artificial means; the gloomy prognostications of the "financial magnates" have been so speedily set at naught by the unanswerable logic of events that their utterances will in future carry less weight, and they will no longer be able to scare Eastern opinion into opposing the interests of the great American mining industry.

The Call has the following upon the same subject:

So far the Silver Act has done all that was expected of it. While not yet in force, the certainty that the United States will purchase an amount equal to or greater than the present production has caused an advance which is best expressed by the bullion value of the silver dollar, which is 56 cents against 70 cents when the bill was introduced. The Treasury Department expects silver to go up to $1.15 an ounce in a few weeks, and silver dealers are buying bullion with a view to such an advance. This appreciation may not be maintained without some interruptions, but there is every reason to hope that with some fluctuations the equality of silver with gold in the 16.988 to 1 ratio will be reached. Free coinage will then come without the slightest disturbance of value. It will have no other effect than to stimulate business as the announcement that greenbacks would be redeemed in coin did in 1878.

WHISKY IRRESPONSIBILITY.

If a man commits a crime when insane from excessive use of spirituous liquor—in other words when he has the jim jems—the law does not hold him responsible any more than if his mental derangement was owing to hereditary or other natural causes. Why wouldn't it be a good idea to enact a law making it a crime for a man to voluntarily commit an act which unseats his mind and renders him liable to the commission of acts of violence against others, while in that condition of mental irresponsibility? There certainly ought to be some protection to the community against the results of this character of insanity, and there appears to be no other way, according to the rulings of the courts, than by dating the responsibility at the commencement of the case which leads to the effect. The passage of such a law would undoubtedly lessen the number of crimes, which are now condoned upon the plea of whisky insanity.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

The special message of President Harrison to the Congress of the United States this week is a rare document, says the Record-Union. For it is a most unusual thing for the President to address the National Legislature upon any social evil question. His communications are almost entirely confined to political, international and financial questions. President Harrison's message on the lottery evil is, therefore, of unusual character and rare in its scope and direction. But it is a message that will win from the great mass of the American people a hearty "Amou" in response.

The charge is made by a Democratic journal that the Administration is endeavoring to carry the Bohring Sea controversy over to the campaign year of 1892. This is an assertion without a particle of proof to sustain it. On the contrary, all the correspondence shows that the United States Government is solicitous to hasten the matter to an early and final settlement.

Miznor, who was appointed from California, Minister to Guatemala, has been out off. Ten telegrams to him have brought no answer. Defazon Smith, when Alini ter to a South American country, was once lost for a year, and the Secretary of State, who desired to recall him, could not find him to serve the required notice.

The Independents of Nebraska have a strong ticket, but a too various platform. They demand eight hours a day except for farm labor, and go for a lot of incongruous reforms. A platform should be like a gun lock, as simple as possible.

The silver bears looked powerful blue last evening.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

RICH GOWNS FOR THE TROUSSEAU OF AN ARCHDUCHESS.

Matters Personal Concerning Women Who Are Famous and Some Who Are Not—Hints About Summer Dressing and Housekeeping.

Much excitement of a sensational kind has been roused in the breasts of the fair sex of Vienna relative to the magnificent and truly imperial trousseau got up by the chief Austrian and Hungarian firms for the approaching nuptials of her imperial highness the Archduchess Marie Valerie, youngest daughter of the emperor and empress of Austria. The excitement reached its culminating point on the intelligence being echoed abroad that the Vienna public would be admitted to a suite of apartments in the Hofburg (the imperial residence) to inspect the trousseau on a certain day between certain hours in the latter half of the week.

The fact of so much magnificence and finery about to be exposed to the vulgar gaze was, in anticipation, regarded as a rare treat which many a fair one would willingly and heroically have sacrificed not a little to behold. Five saloons in the "Radezky Apartments" of the Hofburg were set apart for the exhibition, and the rich assortment of marvels of the toilet and of domestic economy generally were certainly set off to no mean advantage, the display surpassing—and that is saying a great deal—the most sanguine expectations of the severest lady critics. Household linen was on view in profusion, while articles of under-clothing were in texture and style all that possibly could be desired.

The wedding presents of the imperial parents and of the various members of the imperial family to the bride elect consisted of jewels of great price, of serviceable and ornamental plate, of porcelain and glass, besides a quantity of beautiful lace. The gowns and "costumes" of her imperial highness will not be completed till just before the wedding day, to the pronounced mortification of a large percentage of the would be gazers, who in the absence of the one thing needful to complete the trousseau category went so far as to resent the omission as a personal affront. The costliness and beauty of the jewels and precious stones went, however, a long way toward appeasing the greed of that section of fair humanity who find redemption in silks and salvation in stuffs, and whose weakness for parasols and hats is chronic and incurable.

This is by no means the first time that the jewelers and silversmiths of Vienna and Buda-Pesth have won laurels at shows of this kind, and on the present occasion enough cannot be said in praise of the artistic ingenuity and the originality of conception characterizing the diamonds, the "colliers," the bracelets and the rings. Equal praise is due to the manufacturers of the linen and the makers of the lace, while some portions of the needlework, embroidery, stitching and the like, in the chasteness of its design and finish, were, to use the words of a lady admirer in the crowd, "irresistibly lovely."—Vienna Cor. Galvani Messenger.

A Snake in Her Bonnet.

Tuesday evening about 8 o'clock the neighbors of Mrs. Kate Lynchbar were much alarmed to hear a succession of shrieks issue from that lady's residence and ran instantly to her assistance. They met Mrs. Lynchbar, who is a widow, as she rushed from the house holding her hands to her head, but it was some time before she could calm herself sufficiently to tell them what was the matter. Her story was that having an engagement to go to church she had gone into a spare room for her bonnet, which, on coming home from morning service, she had put temporarily on a table in the room.

She picked up the bonnet, noticing that it seemed unusually heavy, but put it on her head, or tried to, for she was prevented from doing so by the presence of some body in it too large to permit her head to enter. Before she could snatch it off, however, whatever it was struck her on the head, she said, and frightened out of her wits she tore off the bonnet and what she declared she knew by the feel of its slimy body to be a snake. Though believing the lady was mistaken in the thing that had been in her bonnet her neighbors proceeded to thoroughly search the room and finally discovered a small puff adder behind a dressing case.

The creature showed fight, but the numbers being unequal it was at last dispatched. There being on the island no snakes of that kind, which is extremely venomous, the only explanation of its presence is that it must have been brought from Mexico in one of the fruit schooners plying between there and this place, and probably was "concealed in a bunch of bananas Mrs. Lynchbar had that day purchased. Her hair prevented the blow the snake gave her from inflicting a wound, which in all likelihood would have proved a serious matter.—Galveston Cor. Philadelphia Times.

A Novel Bathing Costume.

The latest device in bathing costumes comes from the other side, where it was made for an English woman who has already worn one similar to it during a season at that kaleidoscopic seaside resort, Trouville. It is made of black satin—the heavy, glossy quality that comes with a linen bath. The bodice is laid over a tight fitting lining of jean, which is enough support to the figure to enable the wearer to dispense with the stiff corset which many bathers consider indispensable.

It is high up about the throat and buttoned securely with cut jet balls. The satin is gathered back and front, and the fullness is "gaged" from the bust line down to a few inches below the waist, where a full skirt reaching nearly to the knee is set on with a "buttercup shirring." There are no sleeves. In each armhole is set a crescent shaped piece, which laces across several times at the shoulder and is tied with a black silk cord. Black silk tights, with small satin trunks and shoes of soft black felt that are very pointed at the toes, somewhat like the "shoon" of the period of Richard III, complete this outfit. The fair owner says that satin holds its own against the onslaught of the soft sea waves better than any known fabric. It doesn't cling too closely, and wetting rather improves its luster.—Exchange.

Two Girls Bounce a Burglar.

Misses Lulu and Ella Lewis had an exciting experience with a negro burglar at their home recently. Miss Ella Lewis is the retiring postmistress of Gallatin, Tenn., and it was known by the would be burglar that she had considerable money, which she had just received in payment for her postoffice fixtures, which she had sold.

About 12 o'clock she was awakened by a man, who was standing by her bedside with one hand on her throat and the other feeling under her pillow and around the head of the bed. She immediately called her sister, who had retired in the same room, who responded gallantly to her calls for help.

The burglar drew a pistol from his pocket and cocked it, but before he could use it the young ladies seized him and gave him a thorough slugging, all the time carrying him toward the window of the room.

The young ladies finally reached the window with the midnight murderer, and by main strength they succeeded in throwing him out. He fell to the ground, ten feet below, on his head. After lying as if stunned by the blows and his exit from the room above he pulled himself together and made his escape.—Atlanta Constitution.

Styles in Dancing Gowns.

For dancing skirts are cut to just touch the ground in the back and clear the point of the foot in front. For evening parties the favorite materials are bright taffetas, crepe, tulle and gauze; for afternoon dances various fine woolen fabrics are admissible. Simplicity rules supreme, especially in girls' dresses, and what trimming there may be is confined to the hem and the bodice. Silk skirts are plain in front and at the sides, with empire flutes in the back, and a quilling at the bottom made of three or four layers of silk plaited thickly. Transparent tissues are gathered, though not closely, and only tulle of the lightest kind is used double. Much of the gossamer is embroidered with garlands of flowers, Greek patterns of ribbon running through embroidered olive branches and Louis XIV festoons caught up with true lovers' knots made of ribbon entwined in scrolls of flowers. Net skirts are threaded with velvet ribbons or darned with rows of floss silks in colors. Bodices of course recall the decoration of the skirt to a certain extent, and usually made full, with the high shoulder puffings increased by the addition of fly-away bows of fanplaitings of lace standing up like wings.—New York Sun.

Gen. Lee's Charming Daughter.

A trait that would have distinguished Miss Mary Lee, the younger daughter of Gen. R. E. Lee, among politicians is her wonderful memory for faces and names. Even a casual acquaintance met years before is not forgotten, and meeting him several years afterward she at once speaks his name and recalls all the details of their former meeting. Miss Lee came from Egypt to witness the unveiling of the statue of her father. She has spent the last five years in Portugal, France, Russia and the island of Madeira. Miss Lee arrived in New York entirely unannounced to her many friends here, who would have gone in troops to the dock to meet her instead of allowing her to stand alone for two hours on the pier in a cold, drizzling rain. She had expected to find it hot in New York, and packed away all her wraps before landing, thereby contracting a severe cold. She is a tall woman of distinguished presence, and possesses that vivacious charm of manner and brilliancy of conversation which are nature's best gifts to her sex. Miss Lee will remain in America visiting friends in the south for a few months, when she will sail for Rome.—New York Cor. Richmond Dispatch.

Pretty and Bold as a Counterfeiter.

A remarkable criminal case was decided before United States Commissioner Towner at Parkersburg, W. Va., the defendant being Mrs. Gertrude Russell, a young married woman of great personal beauty and a member of a wealthy Lawrence county (O.) family. For some months past numerous instances have occurred on both sides of the river in the vicinity of this city where parties applied to be furnished change for $20 gold pieces have found themselves in possession of gilded silver half dollars. After complying with the request for a long time it could not be decided who the very sick crook was, but ten days ago Mrs. Russell, it is charged, went into a local bank and attempted the trick, which failed. She was arrested and had her preliminary examination, being defended by ex-Governor J. B. Jackson and three other prominent attorneys. She was held for the federal grand jury in $1,000. The defendant faintly when the announcement of the result was made by the commissioner.—Baltimore Sun.

Neither Plays Nor Sings.

There is an old lady musician in this city who as a musical prodigy surpasses everything else of record. Her friends have furnished her a room in one of the downtown blocks, and there she can be seen and heard at all hours of the day. It is not known whether her friends are lovers of music or not, but at any rate she is never asked to play when visiting them. They probably belong to that class of people who never appreciate home talent. The lady has four diligent pupils. Her unoccupied time she spends in practicing. She can teach the theory of music well, but can play very little. Two pieces are all that she has ever tried to play. Her studies are now concentrated on the last measures of "Home, Sweet Home," and if she lives long enough she will probably be able to play all of it. "Days of Absence" is her standby, and she is able to play it clear through. Sometimes, when the spirit moves her, she sings the words of "Old Aunt Rhody" to this music, but it doesn't sound well. She says: "I cracked my voice counting time for my scholars to play by, and if I can't play or sing very well I understand music well enough to teach."—Indianapolis News.

Phil Sheridan's Widow.

Mrs. Sheridan has almost utterly withdrawn from the world. Within the walls of her really beautiful home on Rhode Island avenue she lives in quiet, unostentatious grief for her loved husband, and in beautiful motherly devotion to her four children. About the elegant apartments, on the walls, in the niches, everywhere, are reminders of the lamented soldier to whom her life was so completely given. Portraits, busts, souvenirs of the gallant Phil, his equipments and relics of the war are here in profusion, and the youthful looking mother, surrounded by children whose tender affections center upon her, completes an ideal picture of a departed soldier's home. Mary, the eldest of the children, is a bright, pretty girl of 14; Louise and Irene, the twin daughters, are dainty misses of 12, and little Phil is a delicate looking lad of 9. There is throughout the household a delightful air of graceful refinement, one of the results of diligent care on the part of this exemplary mother.—Cor. Philadelphia Times.

The Tailor Made Girl.

The tailor made girl becomes more masculine in attire every season. Just now the fancy runs to a suit of rough homespun or gray tweed, innocent of trimming and depending for its characteristic smartness on the cut and fit. The bodice is made habit fashion, with a little tail piece and a step collar showing a dandy looking white Marseilles tie, pierced by a diamond pin, while the skirt is fitted to the figure with no fullness or folds, either in front or at the sides, but with a few plaits spreading out in graceful, fanlike form at the back, giving spring to the short little tails of the basque. The popularity of this tailor made dress is due in a measure to its exclusiveness, for there is not a woman outside of the tailoring profession who can cut, fit and press a suit of this kind.—New York Press.

A Patch for a Crazy Quilt.

Late Wednesday night a young woman who was loitering in the evening air on the piazza of her home in Preston discovered by the lightning flash a man in a suspicious attitude near the pantry window. She could hardly believe it possible, but a second flash of lightning reassured her. She did not scream or faint or flutter, but walked calmly into the house and let out the dog. A minute later a stampede proved that the dog had found something to chase, and in a few minutes the animal returned with a recognizable portion of the man's trousers in his mouth. The bold Preston girl will add this trophy to her crazy quilt.—Norwich Bulletin.

The Joan of Arc Costume.

The Joan d'Arc costume, about which so much is said and written, is of fine white cashmere embroidered in silver fleur-de-lis. The skirt is slashed to reveal a silver gray faille petticoat, and the bodice is of the same gray silk, with a vest and collar ornamented with a fleur-de-lis framed in arabesques of silver braid. The white cashmere sleeve caps are shaped in rounded turrets and outlined in silver braid. The hat worn with this costume is of white straw, with the upturned diadem brim faced with gray velvet ornamented directly in front with a silver fleur-de-lis.—Exchange.

Secretary Bayard's Daughter.

Miss Louise Bayard, who is visiting Miss Elizabeth Moorhead, of Ellsworth, avenue, Shady Side, is the daughter of ex-Secretary Bayard. She has been a great success in Washington society, having had the entire through her father's official position to the most exclusive circles of the capital. In appearance she is tall and slender. Her hair is between light and dark. She has a very pleasant and intellectual countenance. She is a young lady of remarkable strength of character, and made a very good impression on Pittsburgh people.—Pittsburgh Press.

It is now perfectly permissible for a young mother to walk along the streets of New York with her child. Heretofore such a thing has not been countenanced. She might lead an ugly, heavy jawed bull dog by a string, carry a pug or terrier or accept the escort of two men in no way related to her; she might also have the attendance of a maid or man servant along with an infant, or run about, but to be alone with the little one was the worst possible form of street etiquette.

Miss Elaine Goodale, the poetess, is government supervisor of education among the Sioux. She lives in camp or reservation in the most primitive way, traveling from one Indian village to another on horseback or in a "prairie schooner." She deliberately prefers this life to the social success which a woman of her talent and culture might command.

Miss Vida Croly, daughter of Jenny June, goes to Europe soon as chaperon of a little sister but a few years her junior and equally as pretty. Miss Croly has the delicate beauty of color that the world raved about in Mrs. Langtry seven years ago.

Do not light a sick room at night by means of a jet of gas or a kerosene lamp burning low. Nothing impoverishes the air sooner. Use sperm candles or tapers which burn sperm oil.

Justice Court.
Charles Hanburch became obstreperous on the platform at the depot Thursday night. He evidently imagined that he was about forty John L. Sullivans rolled into one, for he proclaimed his ability to "clean out" everybody around the depot and a large proportion of Reno's general population. Officer Naab, however, waited the belligerent gentleman off to the cooler, and yesterday forenoon, being in a repentant mood he so inspired the sympathy of Justice Young that he was only awarded ten days in the institution across the river.

Esmeralda Items.

Daythorne Bulletin, July 30th.

It is estimated that Walker Lake has raised eight feet since last Summer. And still she's coming.
Aurora has received another setback. A number of men were discharged by the Esmeralda Con. Company last week.
Last Thursday the thermometer marked 107 in the shade in front of Knap's drugstore. At Luning the same day she touched 113.

A promising strike of ore is reported in the Union mine at Cerro Gordo. The ore body has not yet been developed enough to show how extensive it may be. The quantity of the ore is of the usual average found in the Union mine.
Another siding, 1,700 feet in length, has been put into the marble quarry by the C. & C. R. R. Co., for convenience in shipping. The recent big marble contract for the Mills building in San Francisco will necessitate a largely increased force at the quarry.
The business outlook for the C. & C. R. R. is very bright. An extra train is to be put on at Belleville, a daily train will soon be put on south of Candelaria, and the activity at Keeler, Cerro Gordo, Darwin and Sylvania, demand increased railroad facilities.

Picacho Pickings.

Record, July 30.

A dispute over a bet at faro Thursday night, came near ending in a genuine shooting match. Pistols were drawn but failed to go off.
Lincoln county's portion of the second semi-annual apportionment of school moneys for 1890 amounts to $1,283.20.
The contracts for the grade to Picacho have been let and a party of graders are now at work in the flat on the last four miles of the road. The terminus will be about three miles northeast of town. To see the work so near one can imagine he hears the whistle of the locomotive already.
On July 17, on the road from the Vegas to the Muddy and within three-quarters of a mile of the Muddy, an unknown man was found dead. He evidently perished for the want of water and had been dead some days. When found the body was very much decomposed and the features unrecognizable. Two five-dollar greenbacks were found on him and a double-barreled shotgun lay under his head. No letters or papers were found on him whereby he could be identified.
Advice to Mothers.
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. feb. 21-sw-ly

The Problem Solved.

A few days ago the Journal published a mathematical puzzle inquiring why the multiplication of $5 by $5, which is $25, is not equal by multiplying 500 cents by 500 cents, the product of which is 250,000 cents or $2,500. Brother Grover of the Elko Independent solves the problem as follows:
There is nothing wrong except in the proposition. You cannot multiply $5 by $5, nor 500 cents by 500 cents, for the multiplier must always be considered an abstract number. Multiply $5 by 5 and the result is $25; multiply $5 or 500 cents by 5 and the result is the same $25. Multiply $5 or 500 cents by 500 and the result is the same, $2,500. The "clearly something wrong" above mentioned is simply from the fact that in the first instance the multiplier is 5 and in the second 500, and we are surprised that anyone of ordinary intelligence should see anything puzzling in the different results.

From Beckwith to Greenville.

The mail route between Beckwith and Greenville is to be newly stocked with horses and buck-boards which will commence running about a week from next Monday. Mr. B. F. Gallic, the contractor, has purchased the horses and is having a number of new buckboards built in Sacramento. As most of the travel has been diverted from the N. C. & O. railroad, the passenger business on Mr. Gallic's route is light at present, but if it increases he intends to put on more stock and larger vehicles to accommodate the travel. He has ten mail contracts on California routes and one in Humboldt county in this State.

Nearly Another Blaze.

Last Thursday night a man going to bed in a lodging house on Commercial Row, threw away a match he had lighted and which he supposed was extinguished. It was not, however, and falling among some clothing, the latter became ignited and in a short time was in flames, which were fortunately discovered in time to prevent serious consequences, although for a little while the danger seemed imminent for a disastrous conflagration.

A PORTABLE BOARDING HOUSE.

One of the Conveniences of a Paradise Hay Ranch.

The Silver State says "there are several large hay ranches in the vicinity of Willow Point. The most extensive tract of natural meadow land in the State is situated near the Point, which is a station at the junction of the Paradise and Fort McDermitt stage roads. The meadows are at the junction of the Little Humboldt, which flows from Eden valley through a canyon, which in some places opens out into a narrow valley, and Cottonwood, Marila creek, and other streams, which rise in the Paradise mountains and course through the valley. Nothing, as stated, with the Little Humboldt, east of Willow Point. The hay ranches are owned by R. T. Evans & Co., G. W. Grayson, E. L. Lyng, Hugh Darran, M. Brandenstein & Co., and perhaps others. Brandenstein & Co. have about thirty men working on their hay ranch, and to save them the inconvenience of going to the ranch house, a boarding house, capable of seating thirty or more at a time, has been erected on trucks and is hauled daily by teams to the most central place in the hay field where the men are furnished with their meals. This boarding house is furnished with a cooking stove, tables, and all the conveniences necessary, and is located right where the men are at work, so that they do not have to travel two or three miles to their meals. In Nevada, as in California, men furnish their own blankets, and they sleep at night in the immediate vicinity of the boarding house."

Yesterday Morning's Blaze.

A little after 3 o'clock yesterday morning the bells sounded a fire alarm and in a shorter time than could have been expected, considering the early hour, the firemen had their apparatus out and in a few minutes were at the scene of action, as were also a large concourse of citizens, who were not members of the fire department. The fire commenced in a barn on Fifth street belonging to J. H. Murphy which with one adjoining, belonging to H. P. Brown was entirely consumed. The fire companies did good work and in something less than fifteen minutes after the first stroke of the alarm bell, a stream of water was playing on the flames. It was impossible to save the two buildings already ignited and but for the stillness of the night it is quite probable that a far more disastrous conflagration would have resulted. As it was the residence of Mr. Curtis was badly scorched, and the houses across the alley were in imminent danger while the blaze of the burning barns was at its height. Henry Rule who lives on an adjoining lot had several outhouses burned and also a side of his woodshed. A valuable horse belonging to Mr. Murphy was fastened by an iron chain halter in a stall in the barn. He managed to break loose, but not until his face and head were badly burned, and yesterday the animal with his swollen eyes and other disfigurements presented a pitiful spectacle. Mr. Brown had no insurance on his barn, but Mr. Murphy's barn was insured for $150, and his residence, which was considerably scorched, had a risk of $500 upon it. The origin of the fire is not known.

Mandamus Denied.

The Supreme Court at Carson yesterday rendered a unanimous decision, refusing the writ of mandamus to compel the Board of State Examiners to publish the Constitutional Amendments voted upon at the special election in 1889. The decision declares the special election law and all the proceedings thereunder, constitutional and consequently the amendments adopted are valid and of full effect.

If all papers in the State would adhere as closely to the theory of free coinage as the Independent does, there would be no difference of opinion as to whether the commodity silver law is as good as free coinage or not. We claim that a Secretary of the Treasury favorable to silver, the Bland law would be better than the present law.—Elko Independent.

How does the Independent think the "commodity silver law" compares as an elevator of the white metal, with the Bland law, as executed under Mr. Cleveland's Administration?

Donner lake is getting to be a great place for picnics. Next Sunday a big one is to be held there and half of Nevada State will attend.—Grass Valley Telegraph.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind. "I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." GEORGE A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Sold by all druggists. $1.50 per bottle. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & CO., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

"I am a citizen of this State and will support the nominees of the Republican party."The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:Resolved, That this committee reaffirms the State and National Republican platform of 1888, including the declaration that "the Republican party is money" and that "condemns all efforts to domonopolize silver."Resolved, That the persistent neglect of Secretary Windsor to increase the coinage of silver to the maximum of four millions of dollars per month, coupled with his attempt to influence Congress to enact legislation so as to perpetuate silver demonetization, is a standstill violation of the silver clause of the National Republican platform, an attack upon the rights and interests of the miners, farmers and workers of the land, and an act of party politics that should call for his retirement from the conduct of all administration which is pledged to help and not to hinder the reconstruction of silver.Resolved, That the Republican party of this State is devoted to the unlimited coinage of both gold and silver, that it holds to this principle as a test of party faith and a test of party allegiance, that it will permit of no abandonment or modification of this doctrine, and who desire the establishment of free and unlimited coinage as the law of the United States of America, to join in electing delegates to a Republican State Convention.E. D. BOYLE, Chairman,
